

On the next broadcast of Campus Report, author and UCLA graduate Ben Shapiro, columnist Deborah Lambert and University of Wisconsin sophomore Thomas Kelly join Accuracy in Academia's executive director Mal Kline.

Shapiro wrote the book Brainwashed largely about his experiences as an undergraduate at UCLA. Now matriculated, he is finding plenty of material for a sequel while pursuing a law degree from Harvard.

Miss Lambert's monthly column for AIA's Campus Report newsletter, Squeaky Chalk, chronicles some of the more inane developments in education, such as porn magazines started by college students. Currently, Miss Lambert is compiling many of these columns in book form.

Tom Kelly could not get excused from class at the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee in order to attend the Conservative Political Action Conference. But he can join CR by phone on its next program to talk about his new web site for campus conservatives, and why the school needs one.

Accuracy in Academia's Campus Report will air on March 18th from 2:00 to 3:00 PM on www.righttalk.com. Listeners can visit the site and replay the broadcast for 24 hours after it airs.
